

Archgard Fireplaces Not Only Stylish also Safety Compliant

When outdoor temperatures hit below 0° there is nothing like coming home to a hot cocoa and lounging in front of a warm and cozy fireplace. Indeed, fireplaces are more than mere adornments in any home and find its full use during the cold winter months, or even during cooler evenings in the fall. Fireplaces, however, should not only be functional but also safe. And since you want to maintain the beauty and elegance of your home, they should also be stylish. That is what Archgard is all about.

Archgard is a leading manufacturer of gas and wood burning fireplaces in North America. All Archgard units are manufactured in North America by skilled craftsmen who know about cold weather and keeping warm during the cold winter months. Having been in business for more than two decades, Archgard has become a leader in fireplace solutions. The company offers the best heating solutions across the continent. It's a claim that is yet to be disputed.

Being at the forefront of producing excellent quality fireplaces, they continue to re-invent their fireplaces and gas and wood stoves using the latest in heating technology. Archgard can easily do this because it is a privately owned company and thus can easily allocate resources for product research and development to maintain the company's commitment to high quality standards. Precisely because of this pro-active mindset, Archgard is able to come up with different products that make the home a comfortable and safe place to live in, especially during the wintertime. Among these are the freestanding fireplaces which can also be installed in difficult settings like the basement.

Aside from their commitment to product quality, what sets Archgard apart is its commitment in supporting the North American economy by generating jobs in the locality. This is made possible by utilizing the talents of skilled craftsmen in the area which contributes to lowering the unemployment rate. This also ensures that money goes into the local economy. Furthermore, Archgard's business model ensures that the market only gets the products that have been paid for so that there is no over or under production.

With Archgard fireplaces you do not just get all cozy and warm inside your home, you get fireplaces and gas and wood stoves that add a distinct elegance to your interior from the unique designs available. You also get peace of mind because all products are tested to meet safety compliance standards. As an added bonus, you get great savings because energy cost is optimized resulting to minimal utility bills. All units are guaranteed durable and are supported with a limited lifetime warranty. It is needless to say that no one knows fireplaces as well as Archgard.

Tom Keough

Comfort Connections

February 15, 2012